

LOVE

February 2015

From Rembrandt to Robert Indiana the world is awash with art about love, and all that the word 'love' encompasses. Whether spiritual or crude, syrupy, playful or humorous- Love has launched thousands of images, and in turn prompted as many emotional responses.

Brook selected some of it's favourite artist's work, and a few more beside, to bring you a selection of work which will inspire and excite. From Mychael Barratt's Venus and Mars series, to Dame Elisabeth Frink's sensuous depiction of the famous Canterbury Tale, The Wife of Bath. Through Patrick Hughes more obvious graphically perfect love hearts to Brad Faine's saucy 'Naked not Nude', and not to mention the beautiful jewellery by Zsuzsi Morrison, the gallery will be brimming with visual delights that will bring a smile to your face.
